The majority of all repair projects can usually be completed within a day, two days at the most. Easy, commonplace parts and devices can generally be repaired quickly. The real problem is when our service people in the field get hit with a piece that rarely breaks down, or that we dont see that often. This elongates the repair time immensely. When we have to order a specialty part our average time for fixing the part grinds to a halt. Barring ordering pieces, most jobs dont take twenty four hours total.
